THOMAS KENNEDY

from
"OUR SOUTHERN LANDSMAN" pgs. 60-68
by Harry Golden

Thomas Kennedy was born in 1776 in Paisley, Scotland, he married Roslind Toms of Frederick, Md. He died 1852 of Cholera.

He was son of William, a farmer. An older brother MATTHEW emigrated from Scotland to America.

Thomas was a man of medium height, portly, with blue eyes. He wrote poetry, made long speaches - vessels of patriotism

Thomas embarked at Glasgow on the Britannia, it took 38 days. He later landed in Georgetown on the Potomac.

Kennedy was the first passenger off ship & was met by his older brother Matthew whom he had not seen in 11 years.

Later they went to Washington D. C. which Thomas wrote later was "a wildrness" The White House was not completed as yet. The streets were muddy.

Thomas founded a newspaper in Hagerstown, The Hagerstown Mail.

In 1817 Thomas was elected State legislature as Rep. from Washington, D. C. He discovered the disabilities legally visited upon the Jews by Maryland Constitution. He found this to be a good cause & resolved to right this wrong. On Dec. 9, 1818 he introduced a resolution to place Jews on equal footing with Christians in that they could hold public office. The Bill was known as "Jew Bill"of "Kennedy's Jew Baby" The Bill lost 50 to 24. In 1822 he again brought up the bill and lost, and brought it up again in 1825. This time it passed.

Kennedy was made Postmaster General of Hagerstown in 1828 by John Quincy Adams, he held the office for 4 years.

Outside of Hagerstown, Maryland is an obelisk dedicated by the Baltimore Jews to Kennedy's memory.

Picture of Thomas Kennedy who won religious freedom for the Jews in Maryland will be found after pg. 96

"DEATHS IN WHITESIDE CO., ILLINOIS - 1856-1881"

Researched from microfilm and published by Jayne K Sweger, a former member of The New England Historic Genealogical Sociey; a member of The Oklahoma Mayflower Society, and current president of The Family Finders Genealogical Society of Nowata, Oklahoma, this book is now ready for sale.

2000 Obituarys Condensed From Early County Newspapers!

This new publication is a vital research tool for the serious genealogist who has lines into this northern Illinois county. From the first issue of The Whiteside Sentinel, published July 23, 1857, through the year 1881, I have extracted all the deaths and condensed the obituaries into brief items that contain the pertinent information desired by genealogists.

Names, birth and death dates, names of next of kin; places of birth and death and where the people moved during their migrations across the country are included. The names of 2000 people who died in Whiteside or neighboring counties, as well as isolated deaths from other parts of the USA, are in this book. Also included is an 1877 Map of Whiteside County; 1819 and 1835 maps of Illinois showing county divisions and a brief history of Whiteside County.

The Whiteside Sentinel, published at Morrison, Ill., is the principal paper that was used, but The Sterling Gazette, published at Sterling, Illinois, was consulted many times, and to a lesser degree, some other northern Illinois papers. The Whiteside Sentinel and The Sterling Gazette were - and are - flourishing weekly papers. The Sentinel is located in the county seat of Whiteside; Morrison.
